LAW SUIT LOOMS FOLLOWING SENSATIONAL HAUPTMANN TRIAL

CANTON MAY BAN FOREIGN SAVINGS ASSOCIATIONS

Regarded As Merely Gambling Concerns.

PROSCRIPTION URGED ON GOVERNMENT

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Canton, To-day. Dr. Sun Yat-sen is again brought up as an argument by the Kwangtung Provincial Assembly in recommending the proscribing of the two French savings associations in Canton, which in the opinion of the Assembly are mere gambling concerns.

The Assembly, in asking the Provincial Government to suspend the activities of the French savings businesses, pointed out that Dr. Sun advocated the use of foreign capital for industrial and reconstruction development in China. The savings societies absorb Chinese money and send it abroad contrary to the principles of Dr. Sun, say the Assembly.

In its statement to the provincial Government, the Assembly suggests that people should not deposit any more money with these gambling houses, that the Government should open an office to register the depositors with a view to securing repayment of their savings, and that Chinese newspapers should not publish any advertisements of such savings companies.

The Assembly further states that the Hunan and Shantung Provincial Governments have banned such savings associations. There are two such concerns in Canton, which have however, given cash security to the Municipal Government.

THE ROYAL JUBILEE PROCESSION

10,000 Seats Available For Public

PREPARATIONS IN LONDON

London, To-day.

With regard to the arrangements made for witnessing the Royal Jubilee procession on May 6, it was stated in the House of Commons yesterday that, except for the stands reserved for members of both Houses of Parliament, certain overseas visitors, and others with special claims, the remainder of the seats in small, numbering 10,000, would be sold to the public through the British Charities Association, at the uniform price of 2/6d., the whole of the net profits being devoted to charity.

On May 11, when Their Majesties pass in their first drive, the whole of the stands in Pall Mall and Constitution Hill will be handed free of cost to the London County Council for the use of 10,000 schoolchildren—British Wireless Service.

$2,500 DONATION FROM PRINCE

Thankoffering Fund

London, To-day. H.R.H. the Prince of Wales has himself given $2,500 to His Majesty the King George's Jubilee Thankoffering Fund, which is to be devoted to the welfare of the country's youth—British Wireless Service.

The Prince, before departing from England, had intended to arrive here on Monday afternoon.

New Jersey state troopers were used to control crowds seeking admittance to the Hauptmann trial at Flemington, when only 40, instead of the peak crowd of 1,000, were admitted on the second day of Hauptmann's cross-examination.

ANGLO-POLISH VIEWS

London, To-day. Mr. Anthony Eden, the Lord Privy Seal, who was expected to reach London yesterday evening, bringing with him his first-hand impressions of the European problem as seen from different angles in our great capitals, was delayed at Cologne by bad weather and spent the night there.

He had left Prague by air yesterday afternoon after a morning devoted to conversations with the Czechoslovak Foreign Minister, Dr. Benes, which was followed by an official luncheon. A communiqué issued later stated that Mr. Eden had conveyed to Dr. Benes in a very cordial and friendly manner the British view

COUNSEL "FIRE"

CONDAMNEE'S MAN'S WIFE INDIGNANT

BILL OF $5,000 CRITICISED

DECLARED EXHIBITANT

New York To-day. Because his bill for defending Bruno Hauptmann, now lying under sentence of death in Trenton gaol, New Jersey, for the kidnapping and murder of Col. Lindbergh's baby son, in 1932, is exorbitant and prematurely presented, Hauptmann's wife has dispensed with the services of counsel Edward J. Reilly, whose bill amounted to U.S.$25,000.

Mr. Reilly says that Hauptmann's defence fund amounts to $35,000, while Mrs. Hauptmann has another $15,000. He added that he would take legal steps to collect his fee.—Reuter.

FOOD DISTRIBUTION IN CANTON

RICE STORES TO BE SET UP SHORTLY

Canton, To-day. In order to have distribution of food equalised in this province, the Provincial Food Control Board has recently drawn up a plan for the establishment of rice stores.

According to the plan, the province will be divided into a certain number of sections, in each of which a general store and a certain number of branches will be established. Their functions are to make loans to farmers with rice or farming instruments as security; to lend grain seeds, fertilizers and farming instruments; to sell choice grain seeds to buy and sell grain and rice; and to investigate food conditions.—Central Press.

CAR LEFT UNATTENDED

For leaving his car, No. 3128, unattended, in Chater Road at 9.30 p.m. on March 23, Mr. F. H. Kwok was fined $5 by Mr. W. Schofield at the Central Police Court this morning.

Mr. Burroughs was recently divorced on grounds of extreme cruelty.—Reuter.

The "Tarzan" series of stories which had an immense popularity all over the world in book form, have been filmed with equal success. In the film versions the part of "Tarzan" the jungle man was taken by Johnny Weissmuller, the American swimming champion, while that of his mate was played by the Irish girl, Maureen O'Sullivan.

London, To-day. When the new 24,000-ton P. and O. liner Strathmore was launched at Barrow yesterday by the Duchess of York, it was announced that the Vickers-Armstrongs Company had this week purchased the ship-repairing and dry dock business of Messrs Palmer at Hoburne.

As a result, the anticipated increase of activity at these famous Tyneside yards will provide a considerable measure of employment in one of the most distressed areas in Britain—British Wireless Service.

SOUTHERN FASHIONS ON PARADE SPRING AND SUMMER TRENDS FORECAST AT MIAMI BEACH

Miami Beach, Fla. What the well-dressed man, woman and child will wear at spring and summer resorts this year, was disclosed at the Seventh Annual Sunshine Fashion Show held in the palm garden of the Roney Plaza Hotel recently.

Down the curving stairs of an amphitheatre built for the occasion against the ocean side of the garden, dozens of models of all ages of both sexes paraded to the long runway leading among the palms of the extensive grounds, as Miss Ethyl Marshall, noted fashion authority, explained details.

Fancy styles were out of the picture this year, simple elegance seeming to have replaced the bizarre effects so often launched at fashion shows. Skirts for general wear, an inch or more shorter than last year; extensive use of linen and cotton materials in new weaves for street and sports wear; the growing importance of capes for all occasions as a substitute for the ubiquitous coat or jacket as a part of every costume, were high points of interest.

Beach clothes, always an important feature of resort styles, showed a development of the beach dress to a marked position. Ensembles of long skirts with jackets or capes of the new spongy cottons or shantung linens, monks coats with hood to match bathing suits, linen swim suits with jersey underlining, were plentifully displayed for lovers of the sandy shore. Designs for beach dresses were copied from the Samoan's colourful Everglades costumes, which vied with those that originated in Tahiti.

Bifurcated Skirt

The bifurcated skirt has been adapted to various activities since its growing popularity due to bicycle riding, and the bellows back jacket, borrowed from the men's coat, is another feature of sports clothes.

The dreamy spectator's sports ensemble continues to be the "piece de resistance" of the resort wardrobe. Suitable for practically every occasion, these costumes show a new elegance this season, with much use of fox fur as a trimming, either in white or dark, or dyed to match the popular colours which are aquamarine, dusty pink, jade green and yellow. But all white, or white with touches of bright colour supplied by scarf, belt, or gay costume jewelry, is good form. Velveteen jackets that match the spectators' London.

Some of the new cloque crepes are lovely for the Court; some of these will be made on crossway lines. Cloque designs are flattering if the raised stripes, dots, or flecks are well manipulated.

There will be much white worn worked with silver, and completed by trains of silver. The Court wrap is charming when composed of the same fabric lined with a flesh-pink velvet and perhaps a trimming of fox dyed pastel pink.

THE BONNET

The bonnet increases in picturesqueness, and its very opposite is the small toque, or, again, the deerstalker, often made in shiny straw. Transparent materials, which look like glass, and straw mixed and waxed at that, are used for all kinds of purposes in fashion—for evening frocks as well as hats for scarves and buckles, and so on.

MISS EUROPE, 1935

It was decided recently that the finals of the international beauty contest for the title of "Miss Europe" in 1935 will be held at Torquay from July 1-6 inclusive. Eliminating contests are now in progress throughout the Continent and the British Isles.

Letters and all particulars are shown in the schedules exhibited at the General Post Office and Post Office. All letters etc. must be marked "By Air Mail" and handed in at the General Post Office. Unless superscribed for despatch by a special air mail service, correspondence will be forwarded by the first service available.

BUSINESS DIRECTORYBRIDGE NOTES*When Crazy Play Is Justified

by Ely Culbertson

National Bridge Week, marked the development of Contract Bridge in a few short years from a little known pastime to a national institution. It also marks the development of unorthodox leads and plays from the status of very rare aberrations to that of a highly complicated science. The expertness of the expert is in large measure a matter of knowing when to aberrate.

If a defending player knows that declarer's line of play will succeed if he is allowed to follow it through, even the craziest and most dangerous type of false-card should be resorted to—there is nothing to lose, since the defence cause would surely be lost even if the false-card were not used.

The position of the spades in the following deal offers South two possible lines of play. It becomes obvious to East on the first lead of spades that South has guessed correctly and will be able to avoid the loss of a trump trick unless something is done about it. In this position East can afford to use extreme measures to prevent the success of South's plan.

South, dealer:

Neither side vulnerable.

North:

D—Q 6 4 2
C—7 5

West:

East:

C—A J 8 4 3

South:

S—A J 8 5 8
H—Q 8 2
D—A K 7
C—Q 6 5

The bidding:

South West North East
1 S Pass 2 S Pass
3 S Pass 4 S Pass
Pass Pass

Against the four-spade contract West opens the club deuce and the Ace and King of clubs are taken. West now leads the diamond nine and it is won by Dummy's Queen. At this point the deuce of spades is led. East can assume that South has Ace Jack in spades, and if East plays the ten South will finesse the Jack and drop the King on his Ace. Since South needs to lose only one heart trick he will make his contract unless East can win a trick in spades.

On the deuce of spades East therefore plays the King. This is almost certain to lead South astray. He will feel that West holds the guarded spade-ten, and that only by a finesse can the loss of a spade trick be avoided. South therefore will almost assuredly lead a spade toward Dummy's King-ace, and not to be flattered when West shows out, continues with two more rounds of spades. Then he leads the club seven and plays the nine from Dummy. The result from this point is obvious. East wins with the club ten and East and West subsequently take two diamond and three heart tricks, settling the contract three tricks.

If East not false-carded, South would have needed only to play the club Ace, and continue to lead clubs until East ruffed. At this point South could over-ruff, and draw East's two remaining trumps with Dummy's King-ten, afterward using the balance of the club suit for discards.

BRIDE WENT HOME ALONEHusband Arrested At Wedding Feast*A PRODUCER OF 18*At Work On Film With Cast Of One*"TERRIFIC ADVENTURE"

A new British film producer is making his bid for fame.

He is Mr. B. V. Braun, and he is working on a picture to be called "Terrific Adventure." The exciting title suggests another "Beau Geste" or "Bengal Lancer"—a $1,000,000 spectacle with an all-star cast. But Mr. Braun's picture is to cost £50, and it will have a cast of one—a small boy from the provinces lost in London.

Mr. Braun, when he was 17, produced a "short" called "Beyond the Open Road." It showed great promise and was exhibited by the Film Society.

Now he is 18 and more ambitious, and he wants to make something commercial. He called at the West End offices of a celebrated film company, one of the directors was sufficiently impressed to advance him £50, and Mr. Braun has now begun work as producer, director, scenario writer and cameraman.

He has only one assistant—a publicity agent, Mr. W. E. Dick, aged 16. They were at the same school—King's College, Wimbledon—and see a happy omen in the fact that two other old boys have done pretty well for themselves in the show business—Sir John Martin Harvey and John Barrymore.

7TH OF SEPTEMBER AND SCI-FA FOR TO-MORROW'S DOUBLE

CLUB'S NEEDLE GAME AGAINST RECREIO FAST GAME EXPECTED AT VALLEY

SEVEN PREMIER LEAGUE SOCCER GAMES THIS WEEK-END

(By "ROVER")

FOR the first time in many weeks seven First Division League clashes will feature the week-end soccer programme, the most important match of which is the clash between the Club and the Recreio to-morrow on the former's ground.

The Club, who are favoured for the premier league runners-up position, must produce match-winning form to-morrow if they are to beat the Recreio, and probably the fastest exhibition of soccer for some time will be witnessed.

South China "A," who have already won the Senior championship, are likely to be fully extended by the East Lancs, who, like the Fusiliers and the Borderers, are taking their time to settle down before bursting forth into champions.

GOLF NOTES

(By "NIBLICK")

FC. BARRY fell to F. E. A. Redmiles to the tune of 4 and 3, while D. C. Wilson was slated by R. K. Collings 6 and 5 in the Captain's Cup semi-final round at the Kowloon Golf Club last week-end. The latter match proved the old, old story of "putting poison"; each player would be on the green in the "like," but Wilson's putter positively refused to guide the ball to the "tin," the most glaring examples being on the ninth and eleventh greens when "three footers" failed to drop. Six times champion, Remdiles now meets Collings in the 36-hole final on April 21.

HIGH HANDICAP COMPETITION

NEXT SUNDAY the Tigers will have to take a back seat at the Lion Rock course as the High Handicap competition is scheduled to start at 9 a.m. A field of 28, all with handicaps over 12, will compete for the "Rabbits' Cup." My hopes are that my own card will stand the strain of the first nine, but past experience tells me that at least 50 per cent of our glorious "rabbit" clan will have given up the ghost before the turn. Messrs. Andrews, Stoker, and Henderson are stewards of the course for this competition and I would like to give them a tip—do not forget to arm yourselves with a rule book.

HAPPY VALLEY vs. KOWLOON

DURING the week the Happy Valley team, to meet Kowloon on Good Friday, was published. I sincerely hope that a certain gentleman (who interested himself in the "Ashes Trophy") is satisfied with the strength of the opposition. It is a really fine team and one which will extend the very best at Kowloon. I was sorry to note that Mr. A. O. Brown does not figure in the team, and would express the hope that his gentle personality will grace the Tiff's board; his fund of reminiscences and anecdotes have been a pleasing feature of these bi-annual matches for many years, and I would like to hear more of his own golf course with its average of over 400 yards per hole.

FUNG TO LEAD SOUTH CHINA FORWARD LINE

Strong Team Against East Lancs

POLICE AND S. CHINA "B" IN SHIELD FINAL PRELUDE

Although South China "A" have won the Flint Division of the League, they will be fielding a fairly strong team to-morrow when they clash with the East Lancs at Caroline Hill.

Fung King-cheong will be seen leading the line again, instead of Chan Tak-fai, who made a good substitute on Sunday last against the Lincolns.

Ng Po-kui looks like remaining with the senior team as long as Tay Que-liang is away in the Straits.

Prelude To Shield Final

A very good clash should be witnessed at Kowloon to-morrow, when the Police entertain South China "B" as a prelude to the final of the Senior Shield.

Henry Young, the brilliant left-half, who played for South China "A" a fortnight ago, will be seen marking T. Pile. The teams are—S. China "A": Wong Wing; Leung In-chan, Lau Man; Lau Hing-chol, Leung Wing-chiu, Lee Kwok-wai; Tao Kwei-shing, Chan Tak-fai, Tam Kong-pak, Ip Pak-wah and Ng Po-kui.

S. China "B": Wang Wah-ki; Tong Kwan and Yu Hing-yuen; Lee Kam, Lin Tak-po, and Henry Young; Yung Shiu-yik, Lau Shui-wing, Tam Kinkie, Cheuk Shek-ham and Lee Shek-yau.

ENGINEERS SATISFIED WITH TWO ELEVENS

For their fixtures in the Second and Third Divisions this week-end the Engineers are content to field the same teams that secured the points last week-end.

The teams are—Second Division—Sellick; Slack; Dudley; Denham; Hurst; Boyling; Budden; McGrath; Darby; Howlett; and Creagh.

Third Division—Peabody; Revill; Wilford; Wells; Colman; Jewel; Ferris; Clark; Beale; Woods; and Burward.

TENNIS DRAW

Tourney At K.C.C.

The Club have made two changes in their team to meet the Recreio to-morrow in the First Division, the result of which game will probably decide whether or not they will secure the runners-up position to South China "A."

I. Sterling has been brought into the team at right-back instead of Ralton, who will be seen in action with the junior eleven. Fowler reappears on the right wing instead of Ferrow, who also goes back to the second eleven as their pivot.

CLUB JUNIORS MAKE CHANGES

Nicholls Back Between The Sticks

The Club Juniors, who meet the Engineers in the Second Division to-morrow, are making several positional changes.

Sterling, who played in goal against South China last Saturday, is playing right-back for the senior team, while Nicholls has been moved back to between the sticks, while his vacancy at right half will be filled by Manning Ballon, the skipper.

GILMAN and CO.ENGLAND TO MEET INDIA IN HOCKEY FINAL*CHINA'S DEFENCE COLLAPSES
SIX GOALS IN TWENTY MINUTES*ENGLAND FORWARDS TOO GOOD

HOLDING the England forward line for the greater part of the game, China's defence suddenly collapsed in the last 20 minutes on their semi-final round clash in the International hockey tournament yesterday to allow the winners to score half a dozen more goals after they had led by two goals at the interval.

The feature of the game was the great display by the England intermediate line, who allowed very little to pass them, W. A. Reed having the opposing inside trio completely bottled. Williams and Parker, his wing-halves, also had little trouble in marking the wings.

E. V. Reed was the hardest worked of the two backs, but even he had no more than three of four stray shots to clear and at no time was he really troubled. Cox, his partner, only touched the ball on a few occasions and only to effect easy clearances.

Lack of combination spoiled most of the England forward movements. Divett, on the right-wing, was seen in many spectacular runs but his centring was not as accurate as usual, and he tried too much individual work, while Garthwaite was certainly off.

Senior, at centre forward, played his usual fast game, but lacked support and found A. M. Orr, at centre-half, a difficult obstacle.

The England left-wing combination could not fall in with each other's play sufficiently well enough to be very dangerous although Dawson broke through the opposing defence and recorded a "hat trick" by netting the last three goals. Toyne, on the left-wing, was not fast enough for his inside man.

China's Plucky Defence

Playing a brilliant game in the first half, S. S. Chin, the Chinese custodian, was badly let down by his defence in the second period.

Had it not been for his great sense of anticipation, the score against China would have been easily double what it was. He was, however, a little slow in clearing the ball after stopping it, but this never proved fatal.

SULLIVAN BEATEN IN FIVE SETSShute Fully Deserves His Success*BETTER GENERALSHIP ON TREACHEROUS COURT*Lee Not Expected To Beat Rumjahn

(By REFEREE)

E. L. H. Shute, a Hampshire county trial player, fully deserved his win over A. L. Sullivan, last year's finalist, by scores of 2-0, 6-1, 6-3, 6-0, 6-0 on a very damp court yesterday in the semi-final round of the Hong Kong Cricket Club Lawn Tennis Championship.

Showing better generalship and for superior placements, Shute, father of the twins, was always master of the situation. He will meet either G. R. M. Ricketts or T. A. Pearce in the Final.

Sullivan was unable to keep his feet on a slippery court and was consequently at a great disadvantage. Though his stroke production was not as sound as usual, he would probably have beaten Shute on a faster court.

Shute mixed his shots very cleverly, his well-judged drop shots being his most useful asset.

To-day S. A. Rumjahn, in search of his fourth Colony singles title, will play G. R. M. Ricketts, who is probably the only player who should be a good match, but has not advanced sufficiently to be considered a real favourite.

Dule Singh, the veteran Punjab and Interport hockey player, will lead India in the final of the International hockey tournament against England on Sunday week.

PORTUGAL DESERVED TO DRAW
OLIVEIRA AND GOSANO OUTSTANDING*G. SINGH SCORES ONLY GOAL

(By "STICKS")

ONE of the fastest games in the local International hockey series was seen on the Club ground yesterday when India very luckily beat Portugal by an only goal in their semi-final round encounter.

Gurbachan Singh, the Interport leader, scored a brilliant goal in the first half, following which the Indian citadel was stormed throughout by the fast Portuguese forwards.

Brilliant first-time clearances by the Indian backs and equally brilliant work by Portugal's halves featured the game. L' Oliveira, standing head and shoulders above everybody with a truly magnificent display of spelling and distribution.

On the run of the play Portugal should have led by 3 goals to 1 at the interval, but selfishness in the circle and erratic efforts from short corners lost them their opportunities.

Pinto made a return to the Portuguese side at inside-left, displacing L' Noronha, and, although he was seen in innumerable clever passing bouts with Souza, his selfishness in or anywhere near the circle ruined countless opportunities.

Souza, in Portugal's goal, was very surefooted and cleared very coolly under pressure, his clearance from Khula Khan's terrific drive from short range evoking all-round applause.

Erratic Backs

The Portuguese backs, Rodrigues and Remedios, gave the rest of the team many anxious moments with wild attempts to clear first-time, and as a result, the halves were given a double task in continually falling back to form a line of five backs, which they very successfully accomplished.

Gonzales worked hard in the pivot position but wasted too much time before ridding himself of the ball. The honour of the game undoubtedly goes to L' Oliveira and E. L. Gosano for their magnificent spoiling.

Gosano's Great Game

Gosano was equal to the task of trailing Khuda Bux, probably the fastest Indian hockey player in the Colony, and it was as a result of this that the winners were frustrated in innumerable occasions when a score looked imminent.

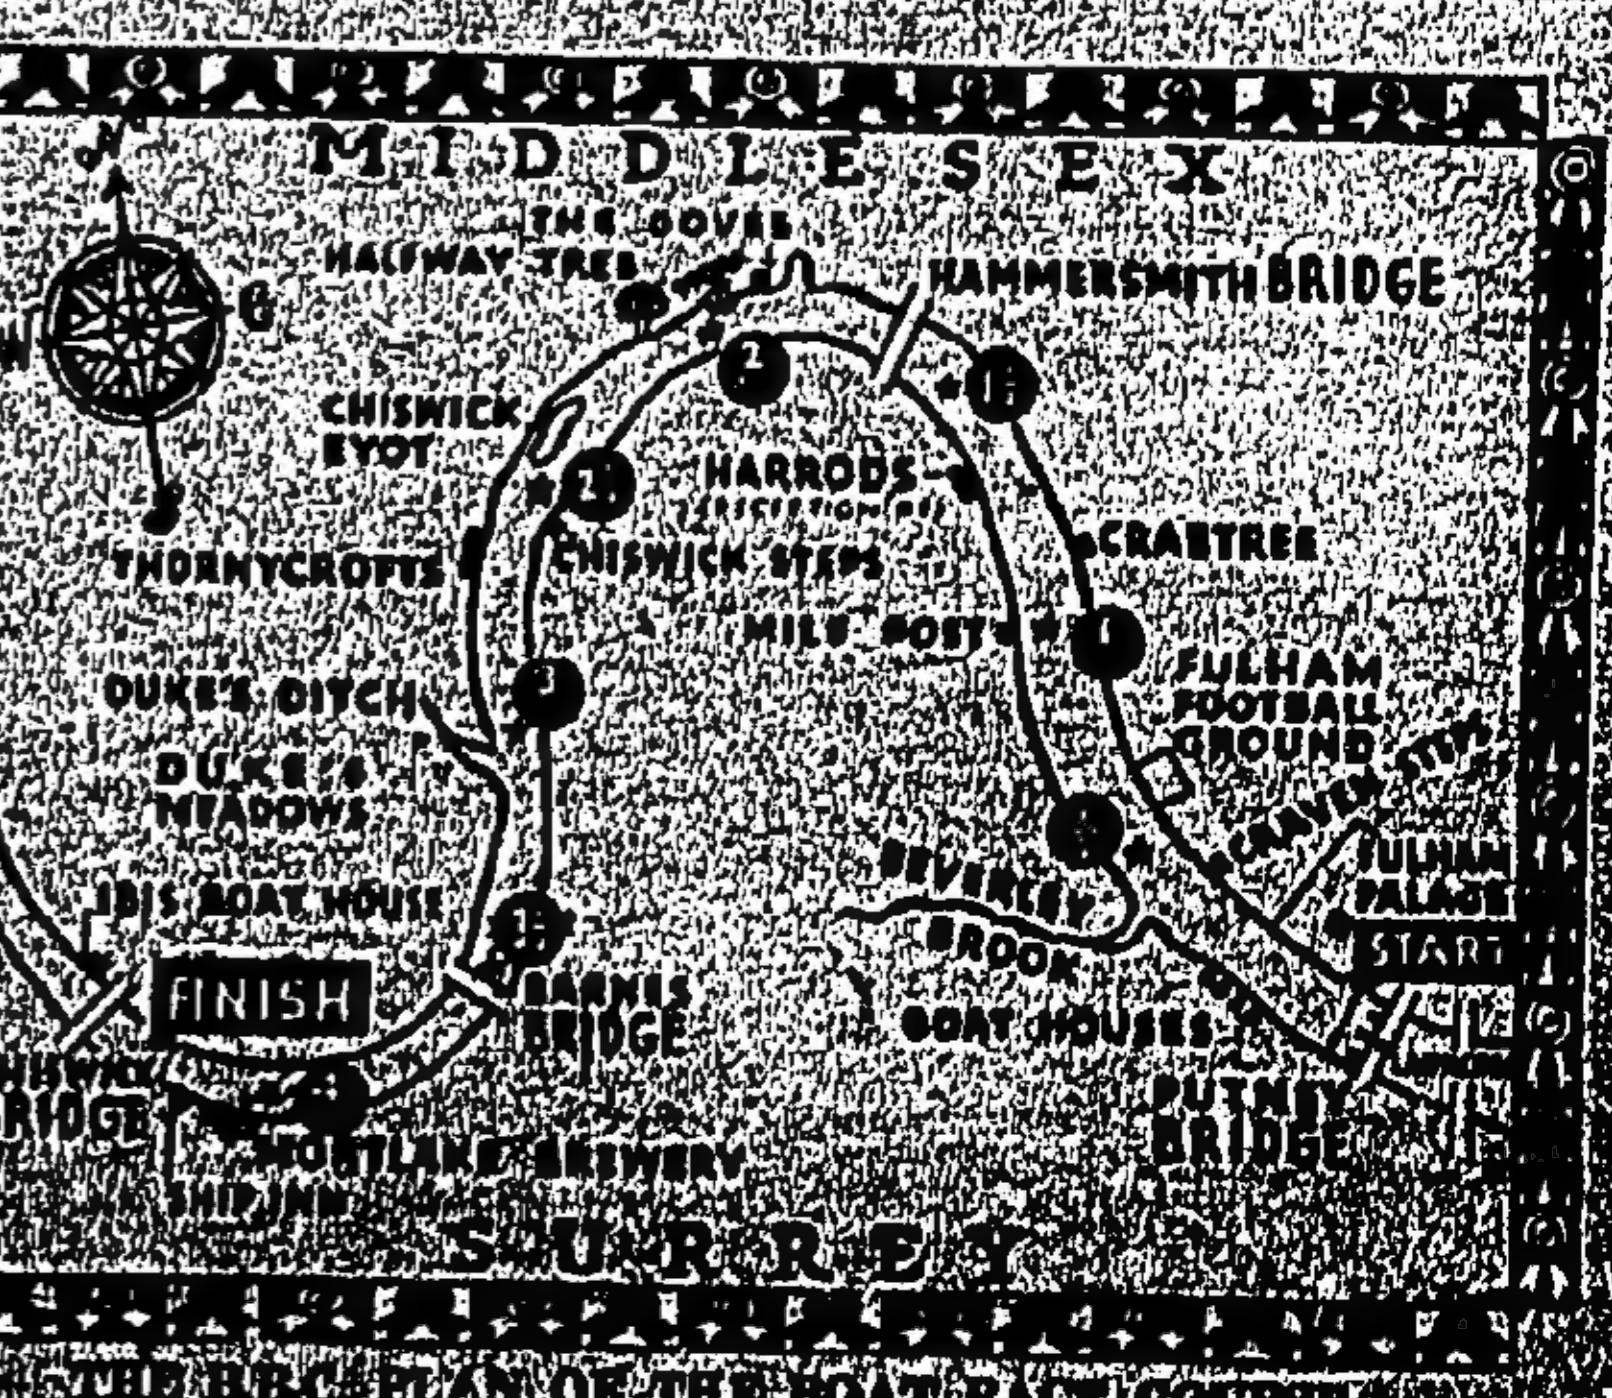

In playing poleman to Ayaz Singh, the India inside-left, Oliveira

Y. LADIES LOSE TO HERMESMiss Wilson Scores Parting Goal

Playing at the Valley yesterday, a team from H.M.S. Hermes defeated the "Y" Ladies at hockey by 4 goals to 2, after leading by two clear goals at the interval.

The girls played a bustling game and should have scored on many more occasions, but weak passing in the circle lost them many opportunities.

Miss S. Wilson, who leaves the Colony at the end of the month for home, was given an opportunity of playing among the forwards and scored a very good goal. Miss S. Dalziel netted the other "Y" goal.

CHARLES LAUGHTON IN "RUGGLES OF RED GAP"

By Diane

AUTHENTIC war pictures composed of official films taken on all fronts during the World War have recently been compiled by the one-legged War hero, Laurence Stallings (author of "The Big Parade" and "What Price Glory"), and in the case of the Fox production titled "The First World War" and that by the B.I.P. titled "Forgotten Men" the pictures show war on land, in the air and under the sea. It is all stark, revolting and horrible—but should be seen by all men and women. Perhaps they will serve a better purpose to end war than the League of Nations.

The opening "shot" in "The First World War" (with captions written by Stallings and speech off-screen by Pedro de Cordoba)—that of Prince von Bismarck saluting for the German cameraman—is stated to be the oldest moving picture of historical value. There are well over a thousand sequences starting in 1908, and so on down a chapter of historical incidents till the start of the Balkan War in 1912, and then the assassination which started the greatest war of all time.

This picture does not only show the Allies, but also German and Austrians, and hides nothing of the horrors. It is packed with sequences so exciting in themselves and so tightly related to each other that it is impossible to pick out individually memorable "shots." You see the jealousies between nations, the preparations for trouble and the instilling of martial fervour. Then comes the fighting in the trenches, the poison gas, and the war in the air.

What the effect of these pictures will be upon audiences the world over I cannot surmise, but they are unquestionably a contribution to history, and pictures that will never be forgotten. (King's).

"The Last Gentleman"

This offers George Arliss in a part after his own heart, and he gives a remarkable character study in a role no one else would dare to play. It can only compare with his unforgettable performance in "The Working Man." It is entertaining because it tells a startlingly original story, but perhaps the stunt at the climax is hard to accept. The picture is substantial, intelligent and superbly acted by Edna May Oliver, Frank Albertson, Charlotte Henry ("Alice in Wonderland") Ralph Morgan, Donald Meek, Janet Beecher, Edward Ellis, and Rafael Ottiano. (King's).

"Winning Ticket"

A lost lottery ticket has been the plot of many a film and stage play, and now it pops up again in a thin comedy in which Leo Carrillo, Louis Fazenda and Ted Healey supply the funny situations.

This will be followed by "The Crime of Helen Stanley", a murder mystery which conforms to the usual formula and keeps one guessing till the finish. Gail Patrick takes the part of a beautiful tempestuous film actress who is shot during a cabaret scene and Ralph Bellamy is called in to investigate the murder.

The suspicion is well sprinkled among half dozen possible murderers as the crime has been committed with some ingenuity, and the interest is well held throughout.

Ralph Bellamy is splendid as the detective and receives good support from Gail Patrick, Shirley Grey, Kane Richmond, Clifford Jones, and Bradley Page. (Due at the Queen's).

"Evergreen"

Jessie Matthews, the darling of the London stage and now attracting favour the world over through the medium of the pictures, will entrench herself firmly in the hearts of flinggoers in this her latest Gaumont-British film "Evergreen". The story tells of a once-famous comedienne (Harriet Green) whose daughter resembles her so closely that a publicity man hits upon the idea of billing her as "Harriet Green" and the girl becomes a star.

Madeleine Carroll and Marjorie Toné are the other stars. The plot is full of twists and turns, and interesting story. A large bouquet of orchids goes to Jessie Matthews for her excellent work in the double role. She sings and dances divinely and in the latter can be compared with Fred Astaire.

Barry MacKay, a newcomer to the screen, does well as the publicity man, while Miss Matthews' husband (off stage), Sonnie Hale, is the mainspring in the humour, and does remarkably well. Betty Balfour, once-famous movie star, is "Maudie," the friend of the mother, but this part is not too well suited to Miss Balfour. Ivor MacLaren and Hartley Power are the best among the supporting cast.

The story tells of our hero (Dick Powell) as an impudent private who is assigned to act as chauffeur for the General's daughter (Ruby Keeler) when she visits Hawaii, and when her father is assigned to the Point as Superintendent, she follows with interest—and love—till his graduation four years later. The co-operation of the U.S. Army helps to put over the scenes on the Parade Ground and are actually photographed in authentic surroundings.

Dick Powell is better than ever, and Ruby Keeler is just her sweet winsome self. An interesting newcomer from the stage is John Eldridge, and an old-timer, John Arledge, is glimpsed in a small part.

The songs that stand out are "Filtration Walk," "No horse, no wife, no Mustache", and "Mister and Missus is the name". Don't miss this at the Central and later at the Alhambra.

"The Night Is Young"

Evelyn Laye and Ramon Novarro make a pleasing new team in the romantic musical "The Night Is Young". You know the story—the one about a young Archduke who becomes enamoured of a girl beneath him socially. To cover the secret romance he employs a ballet dancer to act as his sweetheart, and she makes it most emphatically the best musical yet turned out by Gaumont-British. (Central and Alhambra).

"Ruggles Of Red Gap"

Here we have the famous Yorkshireman Charles Laughton in a characterization new to the screen. The old-time movie "Ruggles of Red Gap" comes to the screen giving this sterling actor his first chance as a comedian. He has amusing dialogue, but depends mostly upon pantomime, and does excellently as the valet who comes to Red Gap and has many adventures. This is also a memorable film, inasmuch as ZaZu Pitts has a chance to wear beautiful clothes.

The supporting cast is about perfect, with Roland Young, Mary Boland, Charles Ruggles, Maude Eburne, and Lucien Littlefield. More later. Coming to the Central.

Careers Of The Stars

EVELYN LAYE was born in London mainly to England since that time. Her great success has been made on the stage, in the silent, and now in the talkies, and she is among the highest paid artists in the world today. Married Sonnie Hale, later divorced. Recently married the English stage and film actor, Frank Lawton.

DICK POWELL was born at Mountain View, Arkansas, in 1900. His parents being Irish. First job was reading electric light meters, but in the meantime the young lad learned to play half a dozen musical instruments and, being heard singing and playing the saxophone at a church concert, was given a chance to leave the small town and soon became the leader of his orchestra of his own. One of his most successful jobs was a "Master Ceremonial" in a cinema in Indianapolis, and it was here he learned up what unknown little girl named Ginger Rogers. The lad worked in a variety act till Warner Brothers signed Ginger, and the partnership was then broken. He did not have a chance in films till the role of the crooner in "Blessed Event" landed him a bit Warner contract; he has since gone on to success to another Warner when very young, later divorced. Now said to be engaged to Mary Brian by his present contract for two years. —DIANE

GEORGE ARLISS was born in London in 1868. Keen always of amateur theatricals, he started when a young man with Mrs. Patrick Campbell, with whom he visited America for four months, and has not returned since.

WEDDING

BELL—CALKIN.—On 4th April at Hong Kong William Henry Bell, eldest son of the late James Bell, and the late Mary Bell of Liverpool, General Manager of The Asiatic Petroleum Company in South China and the Philippine Islands, to Helen Joyce Calkin, third daughter of Walter Lewis Calkin, "Highreas", Ashley Road, Walton-on-Thames. Helen, after that and other conditions had been conceded, the American Senate rejected the Treaty altogether, the League was left under the suspicion, and to a large extent, in the actual position, of being a League of the European Allies in the war;—the very reverse of the policy which had inspired the makers of the Covenant, which must stand or fall by the test "all or nothing".

That unfortunate impression was only strengthened by the proceedings and the report of the Manchurian Commission, and the subsequent votes of the League Assembly. The Report is in itself a sound and moderate document packed full of information; but the Japanese resented the implication that they should not have a free hand to restore order in a badly governed area, as other First Class Powers had so frequently done elsewhere. What, for instance, is the difference between their action and that of Italy in Abyssinia? In the British maps, the place where the frontier disturbance took place—Us-Ual—is marked as situated sixty five miles within the Abyssinian boundary. Why not a League Commission to settle the boundary in dispute?

If Viscount Peel's suggestion merely meant that the British Ambassadors at Tokyo and Nanking or Peiping should use their good offices to promote good feeling, the Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, Lord Stanhope, adequately answered it by his remark that "the British Government had already offered its friendly services to both countries". If formal mediation was intended, it is difficult to see what good result could be obtained, or what likelihood there would be that the offer would be regarded as coming from an impartial arbitrator.

On the immigration question Canada takes the same line as California. On the Manchurian question it is idle to suppose that after three years of delay the hand of the clock can be put back. Something might be done along the lines of recompensing Chinese resistance without cancelling Japanese control, but that policy has, as well known to the diplomats of the two countries as to anyone else, and the League played its part differently. It might have been adopted as a solution from the time when the Allies first took up their position.

LAWYERS IN THE BOX

Not every great lawyer has proved himself so good a witness as Sir John Simon did in his few minutes in the box in his recent case against a clergyman for libelling him.

Lord Darling had to be pulled up in a coroner's court for speaking "twenty to the dozen". Montagu Williams said that Mr. Justice Hawking, who prosecuted a man for threats, was "the worst witness I ever had on my hands". Instead of giving simple answers he did what counsel and judges always scold a witness for doing: he made statements."

Lord Alverstone once gave evidence for a cabman who was summoned for dangerous driving.

When the case was dismissed the cabman offered to drive the Lord Chief Justice anywhere he liked, adding in a stage whisper, "I knew it would be all right when you went and sat beside the 'bank'."

FREEDOM OF THE SEAS

During the Rome conversations Signor Mussolini told M. Laval how he had lost his last vestige of personal liberty.

Not even Hitler and Stalin are more closely guarded than he. But at last he thought he had solved the problem of how to snatch a few moments of solitude. He is a powerful swimmer, and he found seclusion in the waters of the Mediterranean. Gradually he extended his daily swim to spells of half an hour.

This was too much for the peace of mind of his escort. One day he found he could not shake off a swimmer who kept at a respectful but constant distance.

He challenged his supposed pursuer. He was an Italian swimming champion pressed into temporary bodyguard service.

LOCAL NEWS BREVITIES

The second performance of "The Young Idea" was enjoyed by a crowded house at the China Club Fleet Theatre last night.

Sentence of six months' hard labour was imposed on Li Sik, a 23-year-old unemployed, who appeared before Mr. E. I. Wynne Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning on a charge of stealing a purse containing $22 Chinese Currency, and H.K.$24.80 from the person of Young Tak.

Pleading guilty to a charge of breaking into the Yik Tai Girls School, No. 511 Nathan Road, and stealing clothing, and a blanket, and a quilt, valued at $31, Young Pak King, a 22-year-old unemployed, and Lau Hing, a 20-year-old unemployed, were each sentenced to three months' hard labour by Mr. E. I. Wynne Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning.

It is clear that something of that sort might be granted in return for recognition, but the details would have to be agreed by the two Governments concerned. In the South we cannot overlook the attitude of Canton, which would certainly oppose any concession, but forward by foreign powers.

Meditation is only successful if it is asked for by both parties and there is a disposition to accept the suggestion. It appears that the present situation has adopted a stalemate, because the Chinese government, despite several attempts to do otherwise, has not been able to bring the matter to a conclusion. The League has been unable to force the Japanese to change their position.

THE WHITE STAR'S SETTING CAREER OF A FAMOUS SHIPPING LINE

SIXTY YEARS OF SPLENDID ACHIEVEMENT

(By Capt. Frank H. Shaw)

A PROUD page of British sea-history closes with the formal winding-up of the White Star Line.

For over 60 years the white five-pointed star—house-flag of the line—has conquered the worst assaults of white water. To realize exactly what such conquest means you should have seen the brave, lean greyhounds of earlier days diving into the Atlantic shark-infested seas, seeking funnels in furious brine, reeling, formidably across that devil's playground of the winter Atlantic.

Power, beauty, courage: these qualities went to make the conquest possible. Thomas Henry Ismay, founder of the Line, built better than he knew.

There were other storms, than nature's weathered by these proud ships: financial crises occurred, the War inflicted a heavy toll of loss.

But it can be said truly that the real conquest of the Atlantic—that lessening of distance in spite of elemental deterrents, the linking of continent with continent—owes much to the White Star Line, for its grim opposition to the rival Cunard Line set a stir such a competition as made for ever-increasing efficiency.

For years the Line boasted ownership of that coveted Atlantic blue ribbon, and the endeavour to wrest the guerdon from its keeping resulted in triumphs of speed, which were, in their day, the amazement of the world.

Tradition Of Speed

Before the sailing of the first Oceanic, giant in 1871, of full 3,000 tons, the White Star had been carried as a house-flag by distinguished windjambers which had made record passages from China and Australia with freights of tea and wool.

The tradition of speed persisted. The Oceanic was not only fast for her day, but she instituted a new era in ocean travel, aiming at decent comfort for such as used her. And, we of a softer age may be astonished to know, comfort of passengers was about the last consideration in sea-travel in the '70s.

People paid for transport, and for mighty little else. The ships were driven through, or under whatever the Atlantic could brew, and wave-swept decks were untenable for three-fourths of the average winter passage. Life below was purgatory: folks were hauled from their bunks as they shuddered, trying to sleep.

mission. The Teutonic cut the crossing down to five days sixteen hours.

These were lovely ships: in aim, speed and strength a lean, gaunt beauty was achieved, and we of that day always felt a thrill of pride when we met them pounding east or west, their smoke trails low on the grey-veined water, hurtling at 21 knots through whatever opposition the Western Ocean was pleased to send.

Queen Of Atlantic

Then the speed-craze lessened when the Blue Riband was wrested from the five-pointed star: Germany put her Deutschland at work, and the Teutonic and Majestic became obsolescent; the Lusitania and her sister-ship beat them handsomely.

But if speed no longer appealed, comfort and safety did; and the result was the glorious Oceanic, Queen of the Atlantic ship, which set new standards of efficiency and comfort; fast enough to make useful crossings, luxurious enough to tempt the world's keenest comfort-lovers. But the Oceanic was lost in the War when serving with the 10th Cruiser Squadron, maintaining the blockade.

The Teutonic and Majestic were the first of British merchant ships to be equipped as auxiliary cruisers. The tradition remained with the Line: five White Stars cracks joined the Royal Navy in 1914 as active units. Most of the fleet served as transports, and the total losses by enemy action were Britannic, Oceanic, Arabic, Laurentic, Cymric, Afric, Georgic, Covic and Delphic.

Apart from transporting some half a million troops, incredible freights of stores and munitions were hurried to war bases in the yellow-funnelled giants. Some served as hospital ships: the Britannic, mammoth of 45,000 tons, was torpedoed under the shield of the Red Cross in the Aegean in 1916. In return the Olympic rammed and sank an enemy submarine using her only weapon, her indomitable bow.

New Chapter Opens

Prior to 1914 the world's greatest sea-tragedy, the foundering of the Titanic, such a ship as had never hitherto been conceived by mortal mind, saddened humanity. The Atlantic had exacted a savage toll of vengeance for victories won. No stigma attached to the Line.

But, not the Atlantic alone, but the seas of the world, saw the five-pointed star bravely dashing.

For a period they were transferred to American control, though still flying our national flag; they came back to the fold to add further laurels to their names. And now, the splendid page closes, to re-open afresh under a new joint control.

White Star and Cunard have been great names in our history. Every Briton hopes that Cunard-White Star will be an even greater.

FLYING ETHIOPIAN ON ABYSSINIA

Ready To Parley Or To Fight

WOULD LIKE DISCUSSION WITH MUSSOLINI

America's most famous flying negro wants to meet Mussolini and make peace between Italy and Abyssinia.

The writer met him in a small coffee house in Shaftesbury-avenue, one afternoon recently—Colonel Hubert Fauntleroy Julian, who has flown for more than 7,000 hours.

Six years ago he started out from America to fly across the Atlantic with a personal message for his Emperor, Ras Tafari, at Addis Ababa. Four hours out he fell into the ocean and was rescued.

"The Emperor took an interest in me from that moment," he told me. "He at once invited me to go over to his palace—an offer which I immediately accepted—to assist in the development of the Abyssinian Air Force.

Oh, Boy!

"Abyssinia has a supposedly weak air arm," he said. "But those who think so are mistaken. Yes, sir!"

He flicked his dusky fingers and added enthusiastically: "Oh, boy!"

He described to me the hardships any European invading army would meet if it sought to reach the remote Ethiopian capital.

"It is three days by train from Djibouti, on the Red Sea coast, to Addis Ababa. The railway is a single track. We could destroy it in a few hours, leaving no route for the enemy army.

"Imagine it! the blistering sun, the lack-of-water difficulties of transport, opportunities for the defending forces to conceal themselves in the mountains.

"Every able-bodied man in Abyssinia is a soldier—and there are millions. And the Italian army would have to cross hazardous desert land before reaching the empire itself."

"During the reign of the present Emperor the defences of the country have developed—alongside the advances made simultaneously in social improvements—more than during any previous century."

The Cause

Colonel Hubert Fauntleroy Julian gave another flick with his dusky fingers. He smiled confidently: I asked him what he considered to be the root cause of the differences between Italy and Abyssinia.

He told me. "In the first place," he said, "Italy needs an outlet. She already occupies much territory on two frontiers of Ethiopia.

"Abyssinia's wealth is fabulous; she has minerals of unrealised richness—and she is supposed to be controlled by savages.

"Italy has made many preparations—but so has Abyssinia. The Ethiopians will never submit to a conqueror."

"I have called here to see a few friends in London and I am on my way to Abyssinia to place my services at the disposal of the Emperor."

"He has cabled me a five-word message in reply in my cable to him. He says: 'Do as you like. Congratulations.'

"I shall fly most of the remainder of the journey. It is possible that I may even cross Italian soil. Why not? We are not at war with Italy. I would even undertake the task of negotiating a settlement."

RUSSIAN JEW IN TROUBLE

Expulsion Made Out

For entering the Colony without a valid passport, a Russian Jew, Jack Werneroff, was fined $5 by Mr. Q. A. A. Macfadyen at the Central Police Court this morning. An expulsion order was also made out against defendant.

Detective-Sergeant Russell stated that defendant came to the Registration Office yesterday. He booked a through passage from Shanghai to Canton, but when the boat arrived here he disembarked.

Defendant asked for permission to stay in the Colony for two or three weeks to make some money, as he was without means.

The Magistrate, however, refused to grant the request.

INTERVIEW WITH MR. H. KUNG

New Loan Bonds Not For Market Yet

INTERNATIONAL HELP TO CHINA DISCUSSED

Shanghai.

Dr. H. H. Kung, Vice-President of the Executive Yuan and concurrently Minister of Finance, declared in a press interview last Thursday that the new currency bonds of $100,000,000 would be issued on April 1. The issue, Dr. Kung explained, was for the purpose of substantiating the capital of the three Government banks, namely, the Central Bank, the Bank of China and the Bank of Communications, and they would not be purchasable on the market at present, though they might be at a later date.

International Loan

Asked whether any progress had been made in the negotiations for an international loan to China, during his recent conversation with the British Minister, Sir Alexander Cadogan, at Nanking, Dr. Kung said that the matter was still under discussion, and that no new development had occurred.

Questioned on his views regarding the proposal of Sir Victor Sassoon for a new currency based on the pound sterling, Dr. Kung said that he had not had time to study the proposal and could therefore make no comment at present.

Dr. Kung, after his return to Shanghai from Nanking, was called upon at his residence by Dr. T. V. Soong, member of the Standing Committee of the National Economic Council, Mr. T. L. Soong, General Manager of the China Development Finance Corporation, and Mr. Pien Shou-sun, manager of the Tientsin Branch of the Bank of China.

Interviewed at Dr. Kung's residence, Dr. T. V. Soong said that he was perfecting preparations for his inspection trip to Szechuan, and would pay a visit to Nanking in the next few days.

Asked regarding the dispatch of a technical corps to Szechuan by the National Economic Council, Dr. Soong said that the Corps, which constituted only of five experts, had already left for Szechuan.

MANCHESTER WEEKLY MARKET REPORT

Raw Cotton Position Unaltered

SLIGHT IMPROVEMENT IN PIECE GOODS TRADE

Messrs. James F. Hutton, and Co. Ltd., report, on March 6:

The recent steady level of raw cotton values has continued and the general position in the market remains practically unaltered. Planting preparations over the whole growing area in the United States are reported as being quite normal, and the intended acreage is indicated at 31,480,000 acres, an increase of about 11 per cent on last year.

In the opinion of many market experts present cotton prices do not inspire confidence. In some directions a little more enterprise has been displayed, but there is a fairly general disposition to adopt a policy of caution until the situation has become clearer.

India And Far East

Indian demand has been slow in developing, and nothing like the volume of enquiry that was expected would follow. The Bureau has been dealt with. The bulk of this interest has been chiefly for light goods, dhoties, mulls, and nainsooks for Calcutta, together with a few prints, dyed goods and satines. Other active centres have been Bombay and Karachi, but the turnover remains very poor. Odd lots of fancies and speciality styles have been arranged, but in most cases the prices are very low.

The Colombo market continues to do quite a steady business in dhoties and light whites, whilst small lots of lawns, cambrics and fine mulls have been booked for Rangoon and Singapore.

Dominion And General

South American markets have shown improvement this week, and in addition to split printers and dyeing cloths, a nice trade has also been arranged in poplins and dress styles.

A miscellaneous enquiry has been received from West Africa, but a few print styles only have been booked.

One or two useful lines of grey cloths for finishing have been done for Scandinavian countries and Denmark.

For Egypt and the Near East demand has been only small but odd lots of white shirtings and special bleaching cloths have been fixed.

Dominion markets have given quite a steady support, one feature being a big line of white shirtings for South Africa.

1,850 Silver Dollars And 16 Ingots Not Manifested

Charged with importing 1,850 silver dollars and 16 silver ingots, which were unmanifested, two Chinese, Sir Al Chin and Chan Al Tak, were each fined $75. In default one month's hard labour by Mr. Q. A. A. Macfadyen at the Central Police Court this morning. Chan Hui-man, described as a shop manager, who was only charged with importing 1,850 unmanifested silver dollars, was not fined.

Succour For Barnabas

By H. A.
Manhood

EVEN now I can remember how the word thrilled me at the time although I was then but six years old. Succour! We must succour Barnabas. Barnabas being the mule of Jenner Bold, the taciturn and, as we saw it, murderous cruel driver of a milk float which stopped in the lane each morning to collect two shining cans of cream from the nearby farm.

Unfailingly Jenner thrashed the weary mule into motion with a long, whistling stick, and it was this methodical act which moved my impulsive Irish cousin Mary to decision.

"We must succour Barnabas," she declared, her freckled hands clenched and jaw thrust forward, although how it was to be done remained for a long time an anxious mystery and the subject of many secret meetings in the cave among the knotted roots of an enormous beech tree.

At that time our summer holidays were always spent in an old thatched-roofed railway carriage set in an orchard within sight of the Downs, a graceful ark of a place, full of an atmosphere of perpetual holiday.

A spring cart from the farm, driven by circus-minded Johnny Lord, met us at the appropriately rose-towered station and we piled merrily aboard with the help of an amazingly genial stationmaster, my mother and my father, my sisters and myself, with usually a cousin or two awkwardly unfastened safety pins, all of us laden with wicker baskets and untidy brown-papered parcels.

At sight of us Johnny, whose anti-posessions could have been folded comfortably away in a red silk handkerchief, would scratch his rusty nape very deliberately: "You ant forgotten nothing nowhere, the well, or the weathercock or something?"

The hour must have varied but it seems now that we always arrived at the Hut when it was at its mellow, sleepy best, shut-eyed and peeling ripe with sunlight, but with the shadows reaching as if to cage the first coolness of evening. Neither afternoon nor evening, but cow-time as we compromised, for we were sure to meet cows in the lane, a score or more, ambling slowly in their own paths in and out of the overgrown hedges, brisk-tailed against the flies but placid, and sleek as if they had just come from the well-spring of summer itself.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET

E. A. Pierce And Co's Report.
In their market report, the American Oriental Finance Corporation, correspondents for Messrs. E. A. Pierce and Company of New York state:

"Stocks: Continued buying of Utility issues stimulated the whole list, with the underlying sentiment clinging to the belief that legislation in connexion with Utility issues would be modified."

"Grains: Corn was the leader in the advance in grain prices. Trading was active. Talks of light stocks of Corn and an improved shipping demand were the principal influences. The continued strength of the foreign markets has influenced Wheat. The Winnipeg Wheat Exchange ruled firm. There was no moisture in the dry sections of the South-West."

"Cotton: There was a steady demand for Cotton. The market was slightly broader and somewhat more general in character."

"Rubber: This market was quiet, but steady. The rally in Sterling and the steadiness of other markets were the principal factors for the rise in Rubber prices. Commission houses were the principal buyers. Outside interests were quiet and there was no factory interest in evidence."

"Sugar: The market was firm. Spot Sugar was quoted at 3.20 cents, with buyers over that price. There were small offerings at 3.25 cents for May, June and July shipments. Philippine Sugar was sold at 3.80 cents per lb."

"Flashes: The Board of Managers of the Sugar Exchange has resolved to suspend trading in Sugar, No. 1 Contracts, in March subsequent to January, 1936 delivery."

"Brokers' Loans have decreased by $27,000,000."—Reuter.

Messrs. E. A. Pierce & Company's report on the opening of the markets:

The opening on Wall Street was very even on a report that a Bill is being introduced in Congress to re-activate farm implement prices.

Cotton: Liverpool sold for October, while Spot houses bought Near Cotton. There was some fixing by the Far East. The tone was steady.

A

and happiness, the nights too being marred by ugly dreams. We could not explain very clearly why we were so saddened. It was almost as if there was cause given us to see dimly and fear the end of our own small and merry kingdom, so secure till now.

The love of our parents gone, we might even be driven so. That was the way the eldest among us reasoned, but I myself was far from such moral logic. I was simply hurt by Barnabas's plight and wanted the hurt removed. If we never saw Barnabas again the hurt would go just the same, while he suffered before our eyes we suffered too, curiously, for we often ill-treated living things ourselves without a pang.

But then there was a certain innocence about our cruelty, a kind of testing of stresses, a searching and reaching towards other kinds of life with a wish to identify all life with our own. One word from a fly in our own language and we should never have killed another. But as it was we killed and felt that they were withholding recognition of our godliness. Just as Barnabas was.

But we never say it that way. We expected wisdom of age; Jenner should have known better. Watching, we were crippled, hurt in a new way. This was something different, a locked box within our knowledge, oddly tormenting. We thought of begging my father to intercede, or Johnny Lord, but could not bear the possibility that either of them should fall with Jenner. We must act by ourselves. Barnabas must be succoured, but how?

Day after day, spiteful in our helplessness, we met among the roots of the beech tree, scrappingly enlarging our own special caves, outlining crazy schemes. Hope died and flared again. We even thought of taking Jenner prisoner, matching cruelty with cruelty. But all our scheming was wasted, for the final action of Cousin Mary one morning was quite simple and unpremeditated.

Courageous in her anger, she crept through the hedge to the float, snatched the whip-stick and came running breathlessly back. Solved! Barnabas was succoured!

Gleefully we broke the stick into tiny pieces, hiding them in our pockets, waiting for Jenner's return, expecting I know not what. A great pride and exultation was in us all. The sunshine was brighter, more splendid, and the birds were singing with us in absolute harmony.

Actively we heard Jenner clumping back along the path. In our triumph he seemed less big and forbidding, more shabby and stumbling, a demon dethroned. The cream cans winked together in the sunlight as with a foreknowledge of what was to come.

Squiggishly he lifted the cans into the float, stepping up beside them, reaching for whip and rein. His hand groped along the tarnished rail. He stared and awoke to find the whip-stick gone, looking inside and outside the float for it, glaring up and down the lane, finally blaming the innocent mule.

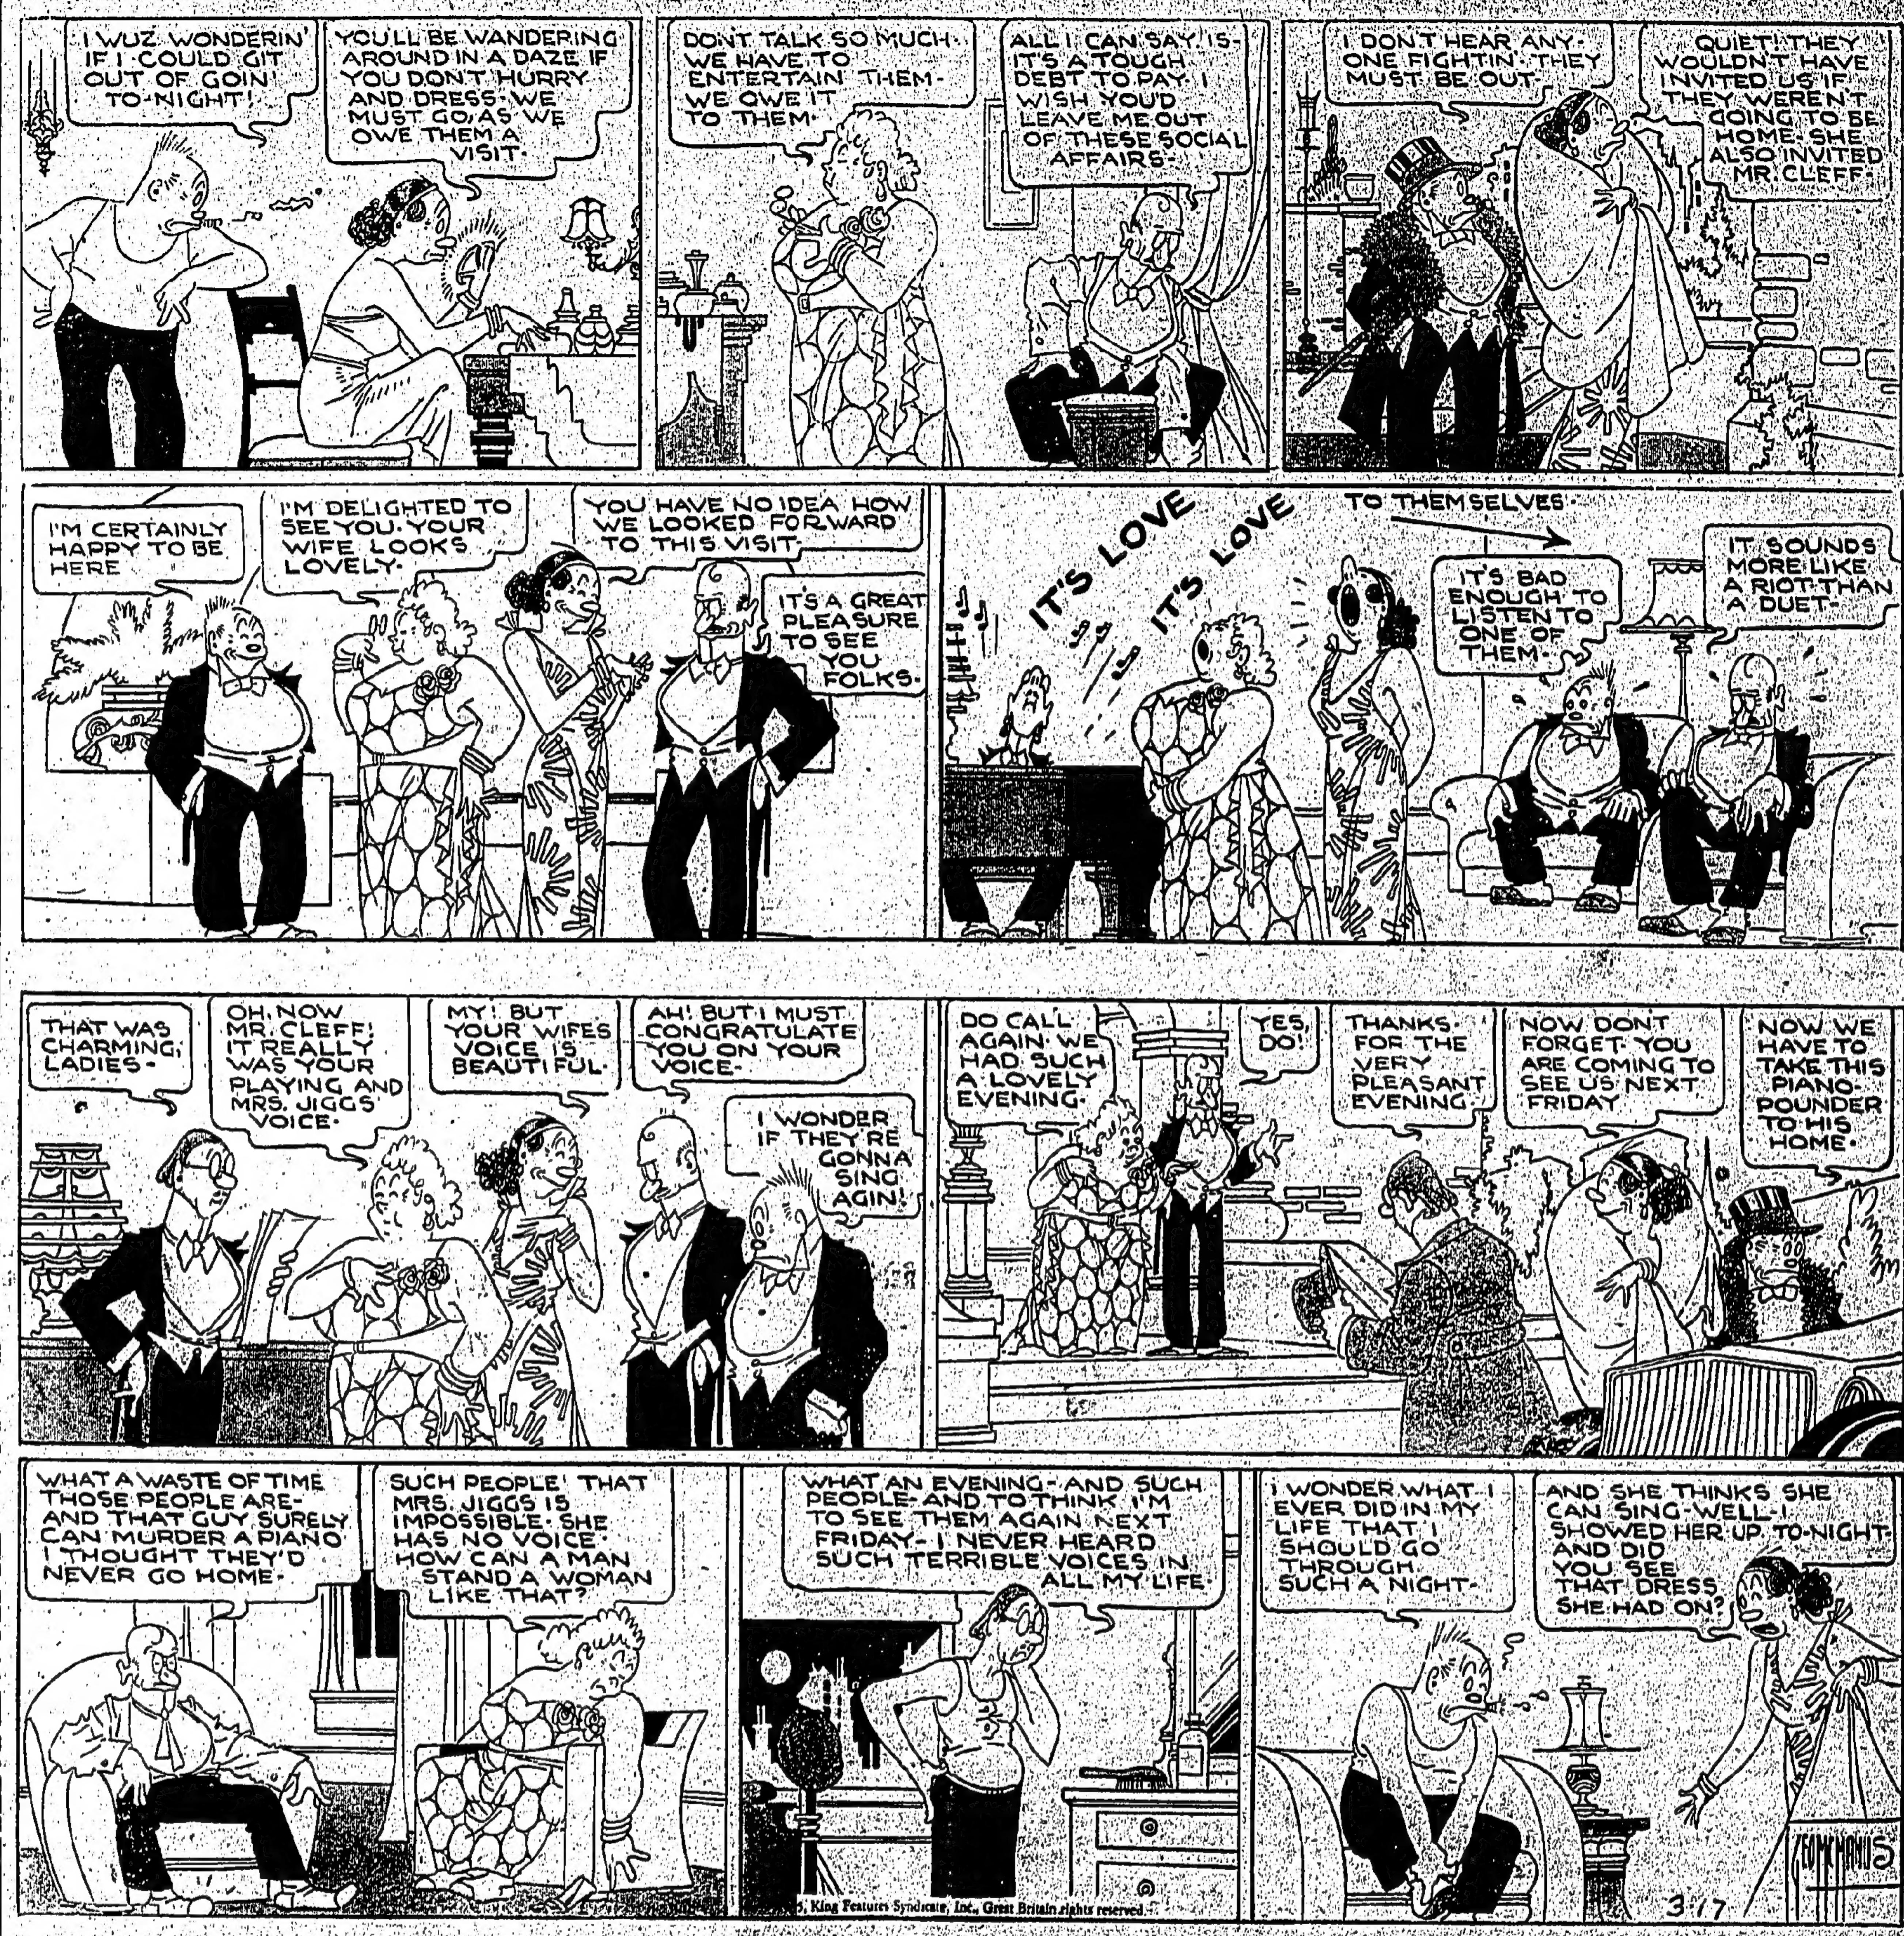

From his pocket he pulled an ugly knife and chopped from the hedge a stick fully five times as thick as the old rod, trimming it viciously. Stamping aboard, he beat mightily with the new rod, cursing passionately. Shocked and stung, poor Barnabas reared a bit and corkscrewed into a gallop.

We stared foolishly, tearfully at each other emptying the bits of stick from our pockets, disconsolate, disillusioned. There was no justice or rightness any more. By our interference we had simply added to Barnabas's already intolerable burden. Where was God that He permitted such a reversal of good intention?

For us all the world was out of balance and the surface sweetness of summer a hideous mockery. Afflicted we wandered, scarred and weakened, savouring food but mildly, shaking apples to the ground, sneering, ridiculous malice, striving to punish God for His blindness. Even when later in the day we heard my father talking very quietly to my mother we were not reconciled; justice had come too late.

It seemed that the frenzied mule had overturned the float in the bend of the lane, and that Jenner had been left lying senseless.

Bringing Up Father.

Otto Kruger will most likely go over to Gaumont-British Studio to act. In the Tolstoy story "The Living Corpse," Conrad Veidt has severed his connection with this studio, as he is dissatisfied with the stories; he will now work under the Korda banner at the London Film Studio.

* * * Everley Gregg, who played one of the wives in "Henry VIII," is playing opposite Noel Coward in the RKO Mac Arthur production in New York of "Miracle on 49th Street." She has had more stage experience than film, and is another of the many graduates of the British Academy of Dramatic Art who is doing well in films.

* * * Buster Keaton, who has done little of importance since his divorce and his quarrel with M.G.M., is likely to return to the M.G.M. studio.

* * * Hugh Walpole, the noted novelist, will return to Hollywood to join the permanent writing staff of the M.G.M. studio.

* * * Laurel and Hardy are at work on their new full-length film in which they will wear the kilt in a story of adventures in a Scotch Regiment.

* * * If M.G.M. produce "Anna Karenina" they will give an Englishman, Glynn Isham, the lead opposite Garbo. He has only appeared in one film "The Iron Duke," with Arliss, but is well known on the stage, especially in Shakespearean roles. He is the son of a baronet, Sir Vere Isham, and was President of the Oudea and Union when at Magdalene, Oxford.

* * * Ernest Lubitsch will direct Marlene Dietrich in "Josephine, the wife of Napoleon."

* * * Owing to the enormous success of the new combination of Queenie Smith (a Broadway favorite), Bing Crosby, and W.C. Fields in "Mississippi," they will be co-starred in the riot of Broadway, "Anything Goes" by Paramount.

* * * Binnie Barnes, after finishing a pantomime engagement, is returning to Hollywood, and will be opposite Frank Lawton in the Universal release "Delay in the Sun."

FREAK FACTS

ABOUT FILM FAVORITES

"Flirtation Walk" will be screened at the Central Theatre on Sunday.

TALKIE TALKS

"Fog Over Frisco"

Bette Davis plays a wayward society girl with a preference for the underworld, in this film, which shows her going a little too far in her associations with shady characters. It is a pity that her half-sister (Margaret Lindsay) does so little to restrain her, till too late. Anyhow if you want good melodrama here it is.

The supporting cast is a strong one, Donald Woods, Lyle Talbot, Arthur Byron, Hugh Herbert, and Irving Pichel giving adequate performances. It can be summed up as a moderately exciting mystery romance, with the mystery revolving round the spoiled girl who craved only for thrills and came in for more than she bargained. (Alhambra).

"Lottery Lover"

This film marks the first screen appearance of another of the pretty society girls with gorgeous gowns and lots of jewels. Peggy Fears does the little she has to do quite nicely. Lew Ayres does not appear to be enjoying himself, and Nick Foran (who sang in "Stand up and Cheer") seems the most alive in the show. There is one catchy song "There's a bit of Paree in your smile Madame" (King's).

"Lives of A Bengal Lancer"

At Easter we are promised the outstanding picture of 1935, "The Lives of A Bengal Lancer", from the novel by Major Yeats-Brown. It is exceptionally good drama of military adventure superbly acted by Gary Cooper, Franchot Tone, Sir Guy Standing, Richard Cromwell, C. Aubrey Smith, and one woman, Kathleen Burke. The critics everywhere are raving over this magnificent entertainment. More later. Due at the Alhambra.

Majestic Performances

"Charlie Chan in London" is easily one of the most exciting of the splendid "Chan" murder mysteries. Warner Oland, as usual, is perfection as the suave, honest, likable Chinese detective. Then comes "The World Moves On", one of the biggest pictures turned out by the Fox Studio last year, and starring the English actress Madeleine Carroll, with the much-liked Franchot Tone. There is a long cast, in this play that goes down through the ages, starting in New Orleans in the early nineties, and finishing after the World War. Splendid work from all, especially Franchot Tone. Well worth seeing.

"Long Lost Father", with John Barrymore and Helen Chandler, did not appeal to me in the least. (Majestic).

Oriental Productions

"Frisco Jenny", starring Ruth Chatterton, is worth-while. The earthquake scenes are specially well done. Miss Chatterton revels in the role of the sacrificing mother. I remember liking the picture.

This will be followed by "That's A Good Girl", starring Jack Buchanan. Unfortunately, too much footage is given to Elsie Randolph. Not up to the Jack Buchanan standard.

"Down to Their Last Yacht" has a long list of names and the settings are well done. Mary Boland, Ned Sparks and Polly Moran are among other present. Quite amusing in parts. (Oriental).

Star Programmes

"One of the first talkies of Sydney Howard was "It's A King", but these who like this Yorkshireman may enjoy it.

The film which follows, starring Dick Powell and Ginger Rogers is "Twenty Million Sweethearts". Is well worth a second visit. Grand music, a pretty story, and acting from the large cast well above the average. Being a Warner Bros. production it is super entertainment.

"Then comes a film I recommend "Half A Sinner". You may have seen it on the stage and in the silent with Jean Harlow in the leading role as Allan the Deacon. Now it is titled "Half A Sinner" and features in solo, well known hundreds of films for his splendid work. Burton Churchill in the role he made famous, with Ward Bond, Irene Cara and Sally Blane supporting him. All told a most interesting film.

Ruth Keeler has a prominent part in "Flirtation Walk".

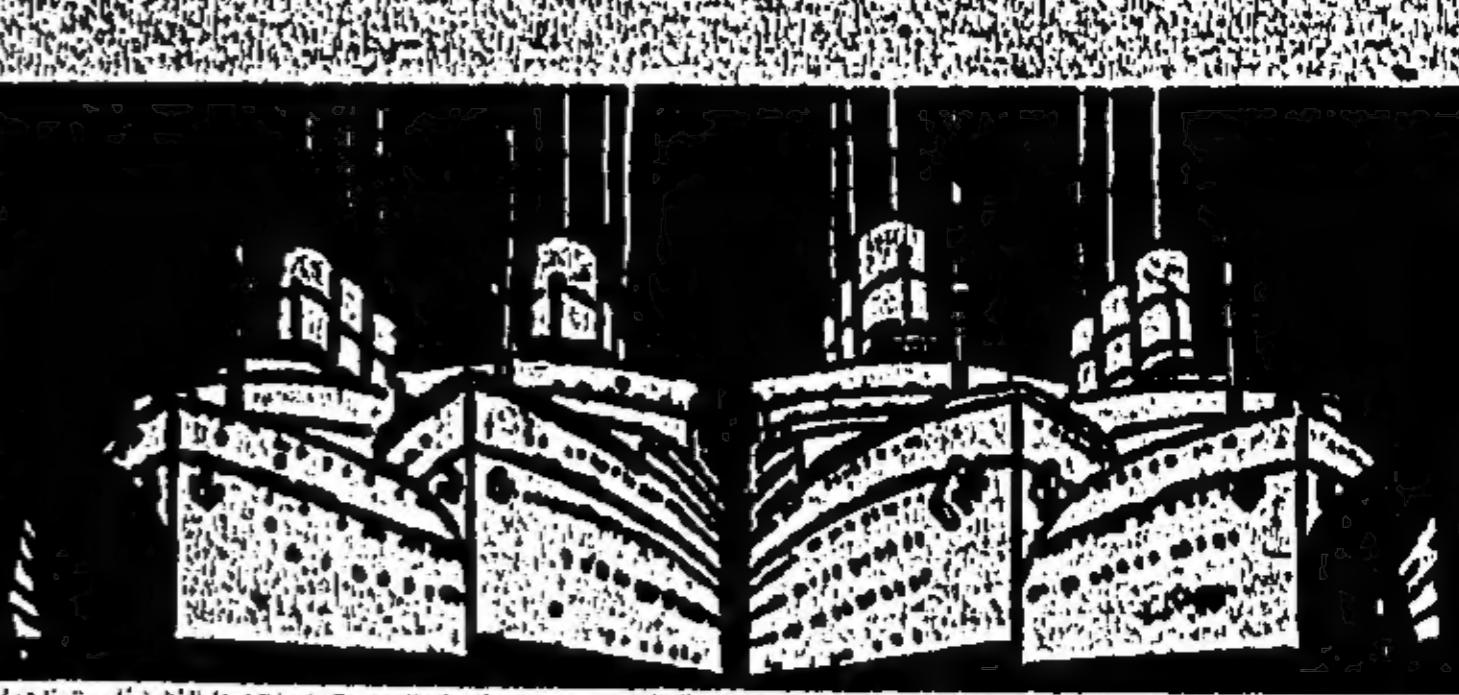

Katharine Hepburn will next appear in a story by Booth Tarkington, "Alice Adams".

Eleven months was spent on location by the director, Chester M. Franklin, and an army of experts men to obtain authentic atmosphere and real life animals in their wild state for the most beautiful animal pictures ever filmed. Several "Wild Animal Love" films have been made recently, but this is the first to be made especially for the screen.

With the opening of the new studio at Pinewood, England, there is a great increase in the number of films made there.

PORTUGAL DESERVED TO DRAW

An Unlucky Forward
Xavier was an untiring forward, and had he been given the ball more often there, there would have been a different tale to tell at the conclusion.

B. Gosano worked hard on the right wing, but it was not until the last quarter of an hour's play that he found his true form and his centres then gave the India defence their most anxious moments.

Souza, on the left-wing, was too slow and over fond of dribbling.

Had he flanked across the centres just when they were wanted, Portugal would have stood an excellent chance of meeting England in the Final.

Difficult To Referee

Before closing these comments, a word or two must be said about the referees. There was no getting away from the fact that the game was an extremely hard one to referee, but there were several glaring incidents when the advantage rule could have been applied and where obstruction was so noticeable as to evoke comment from the spectators.

The game commenced at a terrific pace which was kept up throughout, but, in spite of India's brilliant opening play, they were unable to penetrate the Portuguese defence.

A Fatal Error

Midway through the first-half Remedios made the mistake of retrieving the ball from going behind, but unluckily placed it at the stick of Gurbachan Singh, who, standing just inside the circle and at an acute angle, sent the ball through the roof of the net for an excellent goal.

Portugal retaliated, but, despite several openings, were unable to score.

The last fifteen minutes of the game were fraught with excitement as the India goal underwent terrific bombardment, but with more luck than good play India came safely through the ordeal.

The teams were:—

India:— M. Ramzan (K.I.T.C.); Karmal Singh (K.I.T.C.) and Kishan Singh (H.K.S.R.A.); Tars Singh (H.K.S.R.A.) and Mohinder Singh (K.I.T.C.); Khuda Bux (H.K.S.R.A.); Dost Mohamed (H.K.S.R.A.); Aya Singh (H.K.S.R.A.); Gurbachan Singh (K.I.T.C.) and Ruhia Khan (Police).

Portugal:— U. B. Souza; A. M. Rodrigues and A. A. Remedios; Oliveira, J. Goncalves and E. L. Gosano; B. Gosano; L. Noronha, N. Beltrao, A. M. Xavier and A. P. Souza.

LANCASHIRE AT PIVOT
FOR NAVY

The two China backs, Ching and Chanson, after displaying sound tactics in the first half, collapsed later under the heavy pressure and allowed the opposing forwards to break through on several occasions; Ching played the better game of the two, Chanson being inclined to dally with the ball.

Orr Backbone Of Side

The half-back line was lucky to have a reliable man in Orr at pivot, for on the whole, they played a steady game and this was due to the clever constructive work of Orr. Ang, at right-half, was the weak link in the line.

The forward line never had a chance to show what they could do, for all their attempts were nipped in the bud by the England intermediate line. Goon started at right-back, but when he saw the forwards were being held up so easily, he soon came to the centre forward position, but even his dash made no impression on the steady play of W. A. Reid.

K. S. Liew, on the right-wing, was most decidedly off form and spoiled many chances by erratic play. The inside-right, Tang, was the only one to attempt to combine with Goon, but they were helpless against stout opposition.

England Superiority

From the commencement England took up the offensive, but it was quite a while before they secured their first goal through Tynes, who netted from a neat pass by Parker after taking a short corner. After this, England put up a great fight and managed to hold out the numerous attacks for the next 15 minutes, but Dives, though unopposed, did not score. Dawson, however, did not let the ball in the net.

The second half opened in the same manner, China putting themselves into the opposition's half, but England, with a total of eight goals, had a lead of 10.

Yellow River Floods Still Rising

EMERGENCY MEASURES TO SAVE TAHDANG DYKE

Tientsin, March 29. Upon receipt of an urgent telegram this morning from the magistrate of Changyuan, in southern Hopei, reporting that with the flood waters of the Yellow River in Southern Hopei pouring westward, the Tahang embankment is now in a most critical condition and may collapse under the pressure of the current, the Reconstruction Department of the Hopei Provincial Government has remitted a sum of $20,000 for emergency relief expenses and at the same time instructed the Hopei River Affairs Bureau to raise the height of the embankment a further four feet.

The water level of the upper reaches of the river has registered a further rise of three feet. Minor breaches of the Kin dyke at Huaishan in northern Honan have already occurred and it is feared that they may lead to a major collapse, which would totally plunge Southern Hopei and Northern Honan under water. BATTLE OF THE BRIDGE

Pisan Contest Revived After 150 Years

The mediaeval "Battle of the Bridge," a contest between rival forces which approach from opposite sides of the river and fight in the middle of the bridge, is being revived in Pisa after 150 years.

It is to form part of the festival there in June. With the Saracen games of Arezzo, the Florentine game of Calcio, and the Palio horse-racing of Siena it will complete the programme of mediaeval Tuscan games, which are fought during the summer festivals in the North of Italy and watched by many hundreds of visitors from England and elsewhere.

Bride And Bridegroom Aged 75 And 77

A wedding between a bride of 75 and a bridegroom of 77, which had been made possible by the Public Assistance Committee, took place at a Manchester Register Office. One City Councillor acted as best man and another gave the bride away.

The couple were Mr. George Edward Roberts and Mrs. Annie Foster Newbourne. Some time ago they appeared together before the Public Assistance Committee, seeking relief, and said that while they wished to marry, they could not afford it. The committee proposed that it should provide the means, and the couple agreed.

City Councillors and officials and hundreds of women and girls gathered at the register office for the wedding. The Lord Mayor sent a message of congratulation, and Hulme Town Hall was used for the wedding reception.
